global built environment review

The broad themes to be addressed by GBER include the following:

Cities in transitions and the changing factors which affect the built environment.

Roles, performance and limitations of the architects, planners and environmentalists towards sustainable development/environment.

Adaptability or resistance of the people to the changing built environment through the use of popular culture.

Role of politics, dominant culture, ethnicity, religion and consumerism (particularly the role of the MNC's) in shaping the built environment and their impact on people.

Critical analysis of the North-South debates and perspectives of varied built environment documenting similarities, uniqueness or global interdependence.

The Global Built Environment Review is a fully refereed electronically published journal. Along with a free quarterly electronic publication available via the website www.edgehill.ac.uk/gber a yearly printed edition is expected.

Notes to Contributors

Global Built Environment Review welcomes original contributors:

Articles/ Commentaries

Articles should be approximately 4000-6000 words, although, GBER provides a forum for shorter pieces not appropriate for full-length articles.

Book Reviews/Conference Reports

Book Reviews/Conference Reports should be typed on one side of paper, doubled spaced with generous margins up to 1000 words. However, longer contributions will be accepted.

Title Page

The title page should include the names and full affiliations and addresses of the authors indicating the corresponding author provided on a separate page as manuscripts are refereed anonymously.

Abstract

An abstract of up to 100 words should be provided for articles only.

Illustrations

Please supply all tables, figures and plates separate from the main text. Leaving a window/box clearly indicated in the text so that illustrations can be inserted later. All copyright should be attained before submission.

Text

All articles should be submitted where possible in electronic format by mail or disc through the post. The articles should be in 'Word' or other Windows compatible formats such as 'techwriter'.

Style

References should follow the Harvard system. In the body of the text references should be indicated by author surname and date and should appear in an alphabetical list at the end of the paper.
