

Personal Tutoring: What you need to know

Dr Dawne-Irving Bell, Dr Annabel Yale, Pip Dunning, Corryn Brown and a virtual Dr Charles Knight

Objectives: This session will cover:

- What's in the Policy
- Case study scenarios
- How and where to access information and support
- How to replace everything that isn't academically related to your module or programme from your handbooks using the new 'My EHU' student homepage

This session begins with a very brief overview of policy. It will move quickly into practical guidance where you can explore personal tutoring scenarios. Detail of the new student homepage, which means you can remove anything that isn't academic from your student handbooks will be provided, and we will close with a brief overview of how and where you can access further support.

Pre-requisites

There are no pre-requisites required to attend this course.

Programme

- Introduction: What's in the Policy, what is a personal tutor and why is the role important?
- Case study scenarios providing opportunities to discuss potential concerns, provoke discussion, and share solutions
- How and where to access information and support: including support to establish and maintain clear professional boundaries

UKPSF: A4 V1 V4

Rationale

Delivered jointly between many University staff and services this session has been designed to support individual staff embrace best practice in personal tutoring.

Mindful of retention, student experience and the NSS this session has been developed specifically to support staff to support their students.

This workshop can also be delivered as a bespoke session to individual departments. For more information please contact clt@edgehill.ac.uk.