

Health Education England

HEA4220 Promoting Professionalism and Ethics in Multidisciplinary Practice

HEE (NW) funded places

CANCELLATION POLICY

HEE courses, conferences and programmes of study are funded via NHS public funds and as such HEE has a responsibility to ensure that these funds are utilised responsibly and effectively.

Those awarded a funded place on this module are therefore required to attend and to engage fully with all elements of the course. In addition as funded places are limited we are expecting to operate a waiting list of applicants. In order for these potential applicants to take up a vacated place they require advance notice to arrange time off from their Trust. As Edge Hill University course registration and enrolment procedures will apply, if an applicant cancels their place at short notice and following course enrolment we will not be able to fill the place resulting in HEE having to pay for the full module fee of £660 for people who do not attend the course.

HEE is therefore implementing this cancellation policy which is based on HEE (NW) cancellation policy implemented April 2012.

All those accepting a funded place on this module must be aware that HEE reserves the right to apply a cancellation fee as outlined in this policy. All cancellation charges will be subject to a £10 administration fee.

Cancellation charges

- Those who cancel after nomination but before enrolment will not be subject to a cancellation fee.
- Those who cancel following enrolment and prior to first attendance will be subject to a cancellation fee of 100% of the module fee (£660).
- Those who do not take up their funded place without notice to Edge Hill University or HEE will be subject to a cancellation fee of 100% of the module fee (£660).
- Those who fail to complete (following second and final submission date) or attend all compulsory elements of the programme, including any required assessments, will be subject to a cancellation fee of 25% of the module fee (£165).

Health Education England

- Any non-attendance or cancellations received at short notice due to illness or extenuating circumstances will not be subject to a cancellation fee. Evidence of the circumstances may be requested. As the programme is being delivered by a University partner the delegate must adhere to the university's policy for mitigating circumstances.